Cooking toast the hard way

Members of Sikeston's Troop 59 Beaver Patrol became high-rise cooks Saturday at the annual Okeechobee District Boy Scout Camporee near Oran. In one of the skill contests the boys were told that a flood warning had just been received and the area was likely to be under four feet of water within the next 15 minutes. They were to get their equipment and patrol members above ground, light a fire and prepare a hot piece of toast for the rescue party expected soon. From left, are Benny Gilliland, Brett Roberts and Gerald Norman. Hidden from view are Scott Roberts and Tony Nickens. About 600 persons attended the camporee site Saturday. These included 150 Boy Scouts, 30 Boy Scout leaders, 300 Cub Scouts and leaders and parents and friends. Additional pictures of the camporee will appear in an edition of The Daily Standard later this week. (Daily Standard photo)

Funds sought for refugees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration will ask for $507 million to transport and care for more than 125,000 Vietnamese refugees, the director of the President's refugee program said today.

At the same time, the director, L. Dean Brown, suggested refugees will be free to return to South Vietnam if they wish.

Brown told the House immigration subcommittee there are four categories of refugees, starting with 55,000 Vietnamese brought out under a special provision of U.S. immigration laws that would have accommodated up to 130,000.

"They will be accepted into the United States unless any wish to emigrate to third countries or return to their native land," Brown said.

He said the second category includes 69,000 Vietnamese picked up at sea by U.S. ships. "We propose to accept responsibility for them," Brown declared.

The third category involves about 3,000 Vietnamese and Cambodians who fled to other countries, many in U.S.-supplied ships and planes. The fourth category is an unknown number of diplomats around the world.

The U.S. planes and ships will be reclaimed, Dean said, and the Vietnamese and Cambodians who used them to flee will first be required to seek asylum in the countries they went to.

If refused asylum they will be asked to seek resettlement assistance from international organizations, Brown said; and if they can't get that, they will be considered for immigration to the United States on a case-by-case or class-by-class basis.

He said most diplomats will be able to settle abroad, and those who cannot get international organizations to take responsibility for them will be considered for entry into the United States.

Brown said 124,399 refugees had been acounted for by 5 a.m. EDT today, and that possibly another 10,000 are still on ships of other countries.

He said Canada has agreed to take at least 3,000 of the refugees, and that the United States is working with other countries who might might accept others.

As Brown made his statement, congressional backers of aid to Indochinese refugees renewed their efforts for legislation omitting the controversial issue of whether Congress should give retroactive approval to the use of U.S. troops in the evacuation of Vietnam.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said the $507 million, and perhaps more, will be needed if the number of refugees climbs as high as 125,000.

Mansfield, a Montana Democrat, and Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said they have received no great amount of mail opposing admission of the refugees.

"I think the American mood is changing from the first outburst of fear and selfishness to a concept of what America stands for and what America means," Scott told newsmen.

The House last week rejected a $327-million aid bill for the refugees, partly because the bill contained after-the-fact approval of U.S. troop use for Saigon's evacuation.

The House International Relations Committee may begin work this week on a new bill that deals only with money and omits the controversial troop-use authorization.

The bill was hammered out by a House-Senate conference committee from differing versions passed by both chambers in March.

Army Band gets warm reception

The interior of the Sikeston High School Field House resounded with patriotic medleys, old fashioned marches and a salute to show business during Sunday night's free concert by the internationally famous United States Army Field Band and Soldiers Chorus.

About 1,400 people attended the performance, which was sponsored by The Daily Standard.

Following the performance, appreciative words like "great," "just marvelous", "very enjoyable", "my kind of music" and "stirring" were heard from people in the audience; and lengthy and enthusiastic applause at the end of the performance also indicated an excellent reception.

The music of the combined groups pulled patriotic emotions to the surface but the favorite portion of the program seemed to the salute to show business segment presented by both the band and chorus, which was interrupted several times by applause.

Also included on the program was a tribute to Stephen Foster, one of the nation's best loved composers.

In welcoming the group to Sikeston, Mayor Don Fulton noted that the band was formed in 1946 and has since earned the distinction as "Kings of the Highway."

ALL THE NEWS THAT FITS

Thousands of Americans witnessed on their TV sets recently the ruckus at the Academy Awards ceremony which involved a reading by one of the Oscar winners of a telegram from an official of the Hanoi government. The telegram expressed appreciation to all those Americans who had contributed to the success of the Communist aggression against South Vietnam.

We have also seen on the TV news broadcasts in recent years scenes of violent groups smashing and burning and waving pro-Communist banners. And we are sadly aware of their effectiveness in intimidating spineless and unprincipled government officials. Many concerned Americans have very properly objected to the policies of the TV networks in giving so much coverage to these radical elements.

Few people, however, are aware of the extent to which the New York Times has cooperated in this campaign. The Council Against Communist Aggression in Washington, D. C., cites the following example:

"On February 21 the AFL-CIO Executive Council (comprising the top leadership of all labor unions in the United States) meeting in Miami, voted 34 to 1 to urge Congress to appropriate the aid the Administration has requested for Vietnam and Cambodia. The story was reported prominently in The Washington Post and The Washington Star.

"The New York Times did not report this story. No story appeared in The Times about the AFL-CIO meeting the following day.

"We noted that a few weeks earlier George Meany made a strong pitch for aid to Vietnam during his appearance on 'Face The Nation.' The Times omitted that from their report on this interview."

The trouble is that irresponsible slanting of the news on the part of The Times brings discredit to journalism as a whole. Hopefully, most of our readers will believe us when we say that the majority of newspaper editors try to maintain balance and fairness in news publishing, and that most editors are just as unhappy about the slanted Times as the readers; indeed, even m ore so.

SEN. SYMINGTON'S STATURE

Stuart Symington had sufficient stature before being elected United States Senator to be remembered by Missourians with respect and appreciation. Those who know him personally would add affection to the list of emotions he aroused in people.

Stu Symington is a tremendously impressive man of vast ability. A sound businessman and troubleshooter for industry and government before the days of American involvement in World War II, Symington could have capped a career by returning to private life and fortunes after serving as the nation's first Secretary of the Air Force. Instead he turned to politics with the urging of this newspaper, and was elected to the Senate in 1952.

The Globe-Democrat is proud to have supported Symington from the start of his distinguished career until the end. While differing sharply with him on occasion, and while not concealing disappointment with his reverses of position in critical areas, most notably in his assessment of national defense needs, this newspaper scores the Symington years as a definite plus for the people of Missouri.

Sen. Symington, a native Easterner, took to Missouri and Missourians took to him with easy comfort. A man of aristocratic bearing, he found himself welcomed wherever he went. The vote margins he rolled up in winning four terms to the Senate rank him as one of the state's most popular political figures in history.

Symington's appeal to a broad section of voters was immeasurably enhanced by the respect he enjoyed with international and national leaders in government, in the military, in business, finance and labor.

The advantages he enjoyed because of his seniority have added to his ability to serve Missourians well and effectively. Stu Symington is a man who put his heart into everything. He was an achiever who had a head start on others from the day he entered the Senate as a freshman.

Symington's wisdom in international affairs is evidenced by his early sightings on the troubles in the Middle East. Compared to lesser lights he appears omniscient.

Long concerned over the tremendous financial burdens the nation was assuming in overseas obligations, Symington retreated from being one of the strongest advocates of military strength because he said the nation simply could not afford the costs .

While it can be argued that he is mistaken in his latter-day appraisal, there can be no quarrel with his efforts to halt the proliferation of nuclear weapons throughout the world.

Symington has worked conscientiously for effective arms control. Now as an elder statesman, he is entitled to his view that he has "grown tired of old men in government passing laws forcing young men to die in battle in causes not essential to the United States." Symington earnestly believes he is contributing to efforts to stop the killing. History may prove him wrong, but his integrity is not open to debate.

It takes a man of considerable stature to retire to make way for a younger man. While it appears that Sen. Symington hopes to pass his Senate seat on to his son, he is a realist who knows that the people of Missouri will make that decision.

In his last hurrah, Stuart Symington rates a resounding vote of approval from the people of Missouri for a job well done.

Keeping Up With The Joneses

It seems that bankruptcy is no longer a dirty word which indicates just how far our social values have slipped in honesty and trustworthiness.

Going broke was considered a last resort for the hopelessly out-of-luck, but the stigma once attached to taking a financial bath no longer seems to be an important consideration for many modern-day debtors, according to judges in bankruptcy courts.

Their dockets are now overflowing with petitions from real-estate agents, contractors, school teachers, journalists, stockbrokers, architects and engineers.

In fact, wealthy movie stars, professional athletes and prominent businessmen have gone broke in recent years.

An estimated 10,000 college students in the last decade declared bankruptcy on graduation, thus absolving themselves of thousands of dollars in repayments on Government-insured loans.

A spokesman for the Administrative Office of the United States Courts estimates that the fiscal year of 1975, ending June 30, will see between 232,000 and 245,000 Americans publicly admit that they cannot pay their debts in full or at all. The previous record number of bankruptcies in a year occurred in 1967, when 208,000 petitions were filed.

Nearly 90 per cent of these bankruptcies involve individuals, although corporate insolvencies also have increased steadily.

Most bankrupts still follow a classic pattern. They are poor money managers who become overextended in credit but continue to make both ends meet until something unexpected happens--divorce, an accident, extensive hospitalization, loss of a job, or anything that results in a sudden increase in expenses. Generally their debts are not unsurmountable , yet to free themselves of the worry they bail out through bankruptcy.

To aid borrowers who are pinched, many credit firms, banks and financial houses have stretched out payments schedules on mortgages and auto loans, or suspended finance charges altogether. Many fims consider this preferable to repossession or foreclosure. They recognize that after a borrower declares bankruptcy, a creditor usually recovers very little, if anything.

But the fact is that our economic system since World War II has been based on easy credit, and that system shoves credit down too many people's throats. "Keeping up with the Joneses" has become a way of lift that leads too many to bankruptcy which needs to be changed toward integrity between the seller and the buyer.

TIPPING AND SERVICE

While there are more important problems, we realize that tipping has become a vexing problem to many people. Most of us have mantained that a tip is a reward for good service. In other words, it is "earned".

The old rule of thumb on the amount of tipping -- 15 per cent for average service -- still applies. An amount less that 15 per cent is justified, of course, if poor service is rendered.

Inflation, though , has prompted many of us to take a harder line when we encounter inferior service. Consumers are increasingly tempted to leave no gratuity at all when they depart a restaurant, taxi-cab or hotel.

However, one organization has come up with a solution to this dilemma. The formation of Tipper's International a little more than two years ago is probably indicative of the awareness of consumers on the subject of tipping.

If one of its members is disgruntled with service, he discreetly leaves behind a small card, together with a reduced tip or none at all. On the card, he can check off his source of displeasure -- service, prices, quality, courtesy, cleanliness, or atmosphere.

The plan works both ways, however. Blue cards indicating approval are also provided to members, with the same "check off" items noted.

As Tipper's International puts it, "There's no need to verbally assail or assault your waiter or manager -- they will bet the message in the most professional manner."

John E. Schein, founder and president of Tipper's International (based at Oshkosh, Wis.), says that the group has another goal: To raise the level of service wherever its members appear.

Members also receive "Recommendation Forms," which they are urged to complete and return to the organization, which in turn forwards them to the management of the business establishment involved. Again , these forms indicate approval or disapproval.

At least, this is better than government intervention since the customers really have the final say, as any businessman knows.

COSTLY CHANGE SUGGESTED

Being discussed at Jefferson City is a bill that is labeled "Judicial Reform".

It would do away with all police and magistrate courts, place the circuit judge over all cases now coming before them, but provide an assistant Circuit Judge for each county.

The bill is not good for Missourians, especially those who lie in rural counties like ours.

It is merely a more costly program than the present one, and will further centralize power.

If it passes the Legislature and is signed by Gov. Bond, it will go to the people for a vote.

If it does, Missourians should vote no. It would double our court costs and accomplish nothing here.

By Mark Schlinkmann
Of the
Jefferson City Bureau

JEFFERSON CITY — Gov. Christopher Bond today was urged by the head of a major utility consumer group to withdraw the appointment of Stephen B. Jones to the Missouri Public Service Commission.

Mrs. Alberta Slavin, head of the Utility Consumers Council of Missouri, made the request. The Star last week disclosed that Jones headed an employees' political fund at the J. C. Nichols Company that has channeled donations to political candidates in recent elections.

"This is a classic case of the Fox being appointed to guard the chicken coop," Mrs. Salvin said. "I can't believe it."

As a member of the Public Service Commission, Jones would take part in investigations of political funds at utilities such as Southwestern Bell Telephone Company and the Missouri Public Service Company of Raytown.

"We need some objectivity on that commission," Mrs. Slavin said. "It's outrageous to put this appointment on a commission. This (Nichols) fund sounds just like the one at Southwestern Bell."

The commission's investigation of Southwestern Bell involves allegations that the company made illegal corporate political campaign contributions. The company has acknowledged that many of its Missouri executives have made political contributions but has said they were made voluntarily using personal rather than corporate funds.

In the Missouri Public Service Company case, the staff of the commission has charged that the utility made improper wage payments by reimbursing employees through merit wage increases for their political contributions.

Jones, who was named to a 6-year term on the commission Friday by the governor, has said the Nichols employees' fund is entirely legal and proper and is designed only to encourage individual employees to make political contributions to the candidates of their choice.

Jones has stressed that each donation has been made individually by each employee taking part in the company plan. The employees taking part, he said, have never contributed to a candidate as a group.

Jones also has said that the Nichols company does not reimburse employees through wage increases for political contributions.

Although Jones would be the first nonlawyer to serve on the commission in many years, Mrs. Slavin said she does not believe he would bring a new viewpoint to the panel because of his business background.

"This whole brand and pattern of thinking is what we have now," she said. "I can't see how he will be more attuned to the consumer than to the utility."

Jones said last week that he has never had any connection with a utility firm and said he would strive to maintain an open mind on all questions before the commission. He said he would favor neither utilities nor strident utility critics.

Mrs. Slavin, a St. Louis County housewife, has challenged several utility rate increases in hearings before the commission.

She is a member of a citizens' advisory board that is assisting George Lehr, state auditor, to set guidelines for an audit of the P.S.C. Mrs. Slavin also worked in Lehr's campaign for auditor.

Mrs. Slavin said that if Bond does not withdraw Jones's nomination she hoped that the Senate Gubernatorial Appointments Committee would look closely at Jones's background and the Nichols political fund.

The Senate earlier this month rejected Bond's nomination of D. Rodney Miller to the commission after several hearings before the appointments committee. Miller, an antipoverty worker and nonlawyer, was turned down after some senators said they did not approve of his handling of federally funded programs.

Mrs. Slavin said Jones's nomination as a political independent stirs concern because he was an activve fund-raiser for Bond, a Republican, when he ran for governor in 1972. Jones also is a member of the Governor's Club, a group formed by Bond to raise funds to finance his political activities.

Jones pointed out that he is a secretary of the Citizens Association, a nonpartisan political group in Kansas City, and has worked for Democratic candidates such as Lehr when Lehr ran for presiding judge of the Jackson County Court.

Although Missouri law does not set such a requirement, it is customary for three members of the 5-member commission to be of the governor's political party and the others to belong to the opposition party.

Exclusive: Maritime Labor Leaders Officially Warn Gov't They'll Shut All U. S. Ports to Soviets-Arabs

WASHINGTON + Two powerful American maritime labor leaders -- whose followers can shut down any and all American ports -- went straight into the State Deparatment Tuesday and laid it on the line. They had had it with the Soviets -- and even some oil- producing nations -- they said bluntly. And with them blunt is blunt.

America and its maritime industry and workers, they said, are being rooked by the Russians. Soviets are running wild on all the oceans, the union officials added angrily. And they're undercutting our merchant fleets' freight shipping rates by 10 to 20 per cent, betrying detente and showing the U. S. to be mousy "and without clout," the waterfront men charged.

And if the Russians don't cease cutting up America's merchant fleet, America's maritime labor will refuse to handle Soviet cargo, thereby cutting U. S. shipment of everything going to the Soviets from food to the most sophisticated computers. Nor will Soviet cargo be unloaded in the U. S., was the warning.

Furthermore, the two U. S. waterfront labor chiefs -- the International Longshoremen Assn.'s (ILA) Teddy Gleason and the Seafarers International Union president Paul Hall -- indicated they were ready to meet an Arab oil boycott of the U. S. with a counter- boycott of all shipping to Arab lands. Boycott the boycotters -- who need American food (grain), corn oil and spare parts quite badly.

The confrontation with the State Department, between the two labor leaders, both of them influential national AFL-CIO vice presidents, and Dr. Henry Kissinger's men occurred in the office of Undersecretary of State for Political Affairs Joseph Sisco. With the latter were Counsellor of the Department Helmut Sonnenfeldt, an intimate of Secretary Kissinger. There were three others in Sisco's headquarters including one described as head of the "Soviet desk."

The labor officials, who are members of the high AFL-CIO Executive Council -- came swiftly to the points. One on moral grounds, one political, one economic.

Gleason said he was "sick and tired of the Americans having no clout while detente was being betrayed by the Russians."

He pointed out to Sisco, while the Soviet desk chap made furious notes, that the Russians were "running wild" in the North Atlantic and Pacific, undercutting American shippers' freight rates. Gleason disclosed that the Russian Far Eastern Shipping Co. (FESCO) undercut "us" by 10 to 20 per cent which their slave wages for seamen made possible.

FESCO took on huge steel containers of freight in U. S., West Coast harbors, ran them to Vladivostok, put the containers piggyback on rail cars, hauled them across the Trans-Siberian railroad (now being double-tracked) and transferred them to other lines into Europe.

Sisco looked startled. But this should have been known. The Russians have shipped 50,000 such 20-ton containers, or about a million tons, in this fashion during this year's first three months. And at rates which would ruin our own merchant fleet.

Hall, with whom bluntness is an earthy science, told Sisco and company that detente was a hoax. And that several years ago he had spent considerable time and analysis convincing the longshoremen to end their boycott of Soviet shipping to get wheat and other grains moved abroad. The ILA had acceded. Some 40 U.S. ports had been opened to the Russians. And the Soviets had broken virtually every promise they made -- and so had the State Department.

Paul Hall, the Seafarers chief, told of Ecuador's seizing American tuna fishing craft manned by his followers -- because the ships had gone inside an arbitrarily set 200-mile limit. He reported that the shipowners had been forced to pay very heavy fines to recover their craft. Yet the Soviet fishing vessels were permitted to come right up to our 12-mile limit and take the bread from our own fishermen. Hall's philosophical and political arguments on detente's failure would burn this paper. And probably burn Sisco.

Sharply, Gleason told the State Department group that former Deputy Secretary of Defense William Clements had asked him, back in October 1973, not to boycott either the Russians or counterboycott the Arab oil lands, "for the good of the nation." Gleason had agreed. But no longer. There would be action if the Russians didn't end their betrayal of agreements.

"We're not going to stand for the Russians' getting away with murder and violations of international maritime rates," said Gleason. "If necessary we will take action against them just as we were prepared to counter the Arab oil embargo and Clements stopped us."

If the American maritime labor leaders decided to take counteraction and boycott the Russians, or embargo future Arab oil embargoers, they simply would refuse to handle any cargo to those nations. No loading or unloading at the piers. Picket them. Shut down specified docks.

Egypt and Syria, for example, would be hurt. They have long-term U. S. low interest credits (3 per cent annually) for scores of millions of dollars of American wheat and wheat flour. Why can't food be a weapon, Gleason argues. Isn't oil..

So Gleason told Sisco what he already has urged on his labor colleagues -- "let's take the oil embargo head on and give them a taste of their own medicine but not of our food."

The confrontation rbegan at three o'clock and broke up at 4 p.m. Dr. Kissinger was preparing for a press conference on South Vietnam.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Ford Revisionism

By JACK ANDERSON
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — President Ford has been trying delicately to extricate his foot from his mouth ever since the Saigon surrender.

The sudden collapse of South Vietnam caught him with some bygone rhetoric stuck in his throat. He has been obliged to make some quick revisions, to wit:

-- The President had persistently sounded the warning that the United States would lose credibility with its other allies if more military aid weren't rushed to Saigon. The new line, according to our White House sources, is that U.S. credibility is still high and that our allies can depend upon U.S. commitments.

--The President had preached that a Communist victory in Vietnam would cause its Asian neighbors to fall like dominoes. Now he is spreading the word that he doesn't believe the domino theory after all.

-- Ford had implied that Congress was to blame for South Vietnam's military reverses for refusing to vote more aid. This line was eagerly adopted by Saigon leaders looking for a scapegoat for their own mishandling of the war. Now the President is trying to correct the impression that the United States was responsible for the fall of South Vientam.

-- Ford had called for an emergency appropriation of $700 million in military aid to save Saigon. At the same time, the Join Chiefs of Staff urged that billions worth of military equipment should be hauled out of South Vietnam before it fell into Communist hands. It would have made the President look silly, however, to remove weapons while he was pushing for more military aid.

Therefore, U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin blocked U.S. forces from salvaging an enormous arsenal, which the Communists have now inherited. The irony is tha t the Communists now possess far more U.S. equipment than they ever received from their own Russian and Chinese allies. This contradicts still another Ford implication that Hanoi got more military assistance than did Saigon.

RED FACES: Duane Freer, a Federal Aviation Administration bigwig, presented a flight safety award the other day to the DuBois, Pa., flight station. Then, ceremoniously, he led an FAA delegation to a waiting government plane, took the controls and taxied the plane into a ravine.

An investigation of the accident has now determined that the distinguished safety official was flying the plane illegally and that his fellow regulators had neglected to buckle their seat belts.

At an earlier airport luncheon, Freer extravagantly praised the DuBois station for guiding a pilot safely through an overcast on a near empty tank.

The luncheon crowd, speeches about air safety still echoing in theirears, gathered to see the important visitors off.

Grandly, the FAA bigshots boarded their official DC3 and, as the crowd waved boodbye, the plane wobbled down the runway like a drunken duck and plunged into a ravine.

The crowd rushed to the ruined plane and began to crowbar out the distinguished visitors. Some were seriously injured, including Freer.

The National Transportation Safety Board is now investigating the accident. Their confidential, preliminary finding have left FAA headquarters gasping with incredulity.

The board has found that Freer, although rated to fly light aircraft, had no rating to fly a DC3. This is a violation both of FAA regulations and the law.

It also appears that he was only partially belted into his seat. Worse, some of the FAA regulators, who require all commercial passengers to fasten seat belts, didn't obey their own rules. This apparently caused many of the injuries.

Finally, the confidential findings indicate that the FAA hotshots were to blame for the crash.

Footnote: A board spokesman declined to comment except to say no final report is expected until summer. James E. Dow, the acting FAA administrator, promised "an evenhanded approach" to the case. He told us the FAA would treat "infractions by FAA employes in the same manner as we treat infractions by others."

COLSON'S MANUSCRIPT: Charles Colson the former White House tough guy who turned to Christianity, has completed 100,000 words of his book about Watergate.

He wrote much of the first draft by hand in prison. But now that he has been released, he dictates long passages to his wife, Patty.

Those who have seen his closely guarded manuscript say its message is that "a spiritual revival could well grow from Watergate."

Colson would tell us only that the book is about "what happens to a man when he accepts Christ in his life." His conversion, he says, helped him through the bleak prison months.

Colson hasn't yet selected a title for his book, although he has filled five pages of yellow pad paper with ideas for a name.

He refused to say how much his publisher, Chosen Books, is paying him for the manuscript. We have learned, however, that he turned down higher offers from larger publishers, because he preferred to deal with a small, religious-oriented firm.

Footnote: On two occasions, Colson has interrrupted his writing to testify in secret before the Rockefeller Commission, which is investigating the Central Intelligence Agency. Sources close to the commission say he reiterated views he had raised 18 months ago that the CIA was deeply implicated in domestic dirty tricks.

Generally their debts are not unsurmountable , yet to free themselves of the worry they bail out through bankruptcy.

To aid borrowers who are pinched, many credit firms, banks and financial houses have stretched out payments schedules on mortgages and auto loans, or suspended finance charges altogether. Many fims consider this preferable to repossession or foreclosure. They recognize that after a borrower declares bankruptcy, a creditor usually recovers very little, if anything.

But the fact is that our economic system since World War II has been based on easy credit, and that system shoves credit down too many people's throats. "Keeping up with the Joneses" has become a way of lift that leads too many to bankruptcy which needs to be changed toward integrity between the seller and the buyer.

TIPPING AND SERVICE

While there are more important problems, we realize that tipping has become a vexing problem to many people. Most of us have mantained that a tip is a reward for good service. In other words, it is "earned".

The old rule of thumb on the amount of tipping -- 15 per cent for average service -- still applies. An amount less that 15 per cent is justified, of course, if poor service is rendered.

Inflation, though , has prompted many of us to take a harder line when we encounter inferior service. Consumers are increasingly tempted to leave no gratuity at all when they depart a restaurant, taxi-cab or hotel.

However, one organization has come up with a solution to this dilemma. The formation of Tipper's International a little more than two years ago is probably indicative of the awareness of consumers on the subject of tipping.

If one of its members is disgruntled with service, he discreetly leaves behind a small card, together with a reduced tip or none at all. On the card, he can check off his source of displeasure -- service, prices, quality, courtesy, cleanliness, or atmosphere.

The plan works both ways, however. Blue cards indicating approval are also provided to members, with the same "check off" items noted.

As Tipper's International puts it, "There's no need to verbally assail or assault your waiter or manager -- they will bet the message in the most professional manner."

John E. Schein, founder and president of Tipper's International (based at Oshkosh, Wis.), says that the group has another goal: To raise the level of service wherever its members appear.

Members also receive "Recommendation Forms," which they are urged to complete and return to the organization, which in turn forwards them to the management of the business establishment involved. Again , these forms indicate approval or disapproval.

At least, this is better than government intervention since the customers really have the final say, as any businessman knows.

COSTLY CHANGE SUGGESTED

Being discussed at Jefferson City is a bill that is labeled "Judicial Reform".

It would do away with all police and magistrate courts, place the circuit judge over all cases now coming before them, but provide an assistant Circuit Judge for each county.

The bill is not good for Missourians, especially those who lie in rural counties like ours.

It is merely a more costly program than the present one, and will further centralize power.

If it passes the Legislature and is signed by Gov. Bond, it will go to the people for a vote.

If it does, Missourians should vote no. It would double our court costs and accomplish nothing here.

By Mark Schlinkmann
Of the
Jefferson City Bureau

JEFFERSON CITY — Gov. Christopher Bond today was urged by the head of a major utility consumer group to withdraw the appointment of Stephen B. Jones to the Missouri Public Service Commission.

Mrs. Alberta Slavin, head of the Utility Consumers Council of Missouri, made the request. The Star last week disclosed that Jones headed an employees' political fund at the J. C. Nichols Company that has channeled donations to political candidates in recent elections.

"This is a classic case of the Fox being appointed to guard the chicken coop," Mrs. Salvin said. "I can't believe it."

As a member of the Public Service Commission, Jones would take part in investigations of political funds at utilities such as Southwestern Bell Telephone Company and the Missouri Public Service Company of Raytown.

"We need some objectivity on that commission," Mrs. Slavin said. "It's outrageous to put this appointment on a commission. This (Nichols) fund sounds just like the one at Southwestern Bell."

The commission's investigation of Southwestern Bell involves allegations that the company made illegal corporate political campaign contributions. The company has acknowledged that many of its Missouri executives have made political contributions but has said they were made voluntarily using personal rather than corporate funds.

In the Missouri Public Service Company case, the staff of the commission has charged that the utility made improper wage payments by reimbursing employees through merit wage increases for their political contributions.

Jones, who was named to a 6-year term on the commission Friday by the governor, has said the Nichols employees' fund is entirely legal and proper and is designed only to encourage individual employees to make political contributions to the candidates of their choice.

Jones has stressed that each donation has been made individually by each employee taking part in the company plan. The employees taking part, he said, have never contributed to a candidate as a group.

Jones also has said that the Nichols company does not reimburse employees through wage increases for political contributions.

Although Jones would be the first nonlawyer to serve on the commission in many years, Mrs. Slavin said she does not believe he would bring a new viewpoint to the panel because of his business background.

"This whole brand and pattern of thinking is what we have now," she said. "I can't see how he will be more attuned to the consumer than to the utility."

Jones said last week that he has never had any connection with a utility firm and said he would strive to maintain an open mind on all questions before the commission. He said he would favor neither utilities nor strident utility critics.

Mrs. Slavin, a St. Louis County housewife, has challenged several utility rate increases in hearings before the commission.

She is a member of a citizens' advisory board that is assisting George Lehr, state auditor, to set guidelines for an audit of the P.S.C. Mrs. Slavin also worked in Lehr's campaign for auditor.

Mrs. Slavin said that if Bond does not withdraw Jones's nomination she hoped that the Senate Gubernatorial Appointments Committee would look closely at Jones's background and the Nichols political fund.

The Senate earlier this month rejected Bond's nomination of D. Rodney Miller to the commission after several hearings before the appointments committee. Miller, an anti-poverty worker and non-lawyer, was turned down after some senators said they did not approve of his handling of federally funded programs.

Mrs. Slavin said Jones's nomination as a political independent stirs concern because he was an activve fund-raiser for Bond, a Republican, when he ran for governor in 1972. Jones also is a member of the Governor's Club, a group formed by Bond to raise funds to finance his political activities.

Jones pointed out that he is a secretary of the Citizens Association, a nonpartisan political group in Kansas City, and has worked for Democratic candidates such as Lehr when Lehr ran for presiding judge of the Jackson County Court.

Although Missouri law does not set such a requirement, it is customary for three members of the 5-member commission to be of the governor's political party and the others to belong to the opposition party.

Inside Labor
By Victor Riesel

Exclusive: Maritime Labor Leaders Officially Warn Gov't They'll Shut All U. S. Ports to Soviets-Arabs

WASHINGTON + Two powerful American maritime labor leaders -- whose followers can shut down any and all American ports -- went straight into the State Deparatment Tuesday and laid it on the line. They had had it with the Soviets -- and even some oil- producing nations -- they said bluntly. And with them blunt is blunt.

America and its maritime industry and workers, they said, are being rooked by the Russians. Soviets are running wild on all the oceans, the union officials added angrily. And they're undercutting our merchant fleets' freight shipping rates by 10 to 20 per cent, betrying detente and showing the U. S. to be mousy "and without clout," the waterfront men charged.

And if the Russians don't cease cutting up America's merchant fleet, America's maritime labor will refuse to handle Soviet cargo, thereby cutting U. S. shipment of everything going to the Soviets from food to the most sophisticated computers. Nor will Soviet cargo be unloaded in the U. S., was the warning.

Furthermore, the two U. S. waterfront labor chiefs -- the International Longshoremen Assn.'s (ILA) Teddy Gleason and the Seafarers International Union president Paul Hall -- indicated they were ready to meet an Arab oil boycott of the U. S. with a counter- boycott of all shipping to Arab lands. Boycott the boycotters -- who need American food (grain), corn oil and spare parts quite badly.

The confrontation with the State Department, between the two labor leaders, both of them influential national AFL-CIO vice presidents, and Dr. Henry Kissinger's men occurred in the office of Undersecretary of State for Political Affairs Joseph Sisco. With the latter were Counsellor of the Department Helmut Sonnenfeldt, an intimate of Secretary Kissinger. There were three others in Sisco's headquarters including one described as head of the "Soviet desk."

The labor officials, who are members of the high AFL-CIO Executive Council -- came swiftly to the points. One on moral grounds, one political, one economic.

Gleason said he was "sick and tired of the Americans having no clout while detente was being betrayed by the Russians."

He pointed out to Sisco, while the Soviet desk chap made furious notes, that the Russians were "running wild" in the North Atlantic and Pacific, undercutting American shippers' freight rates. Gleason disclosed that the Russian Far Eastern Shipping Co. (FESCO) undercut "us" by 10 to 20 per cent which their slave wages for seamen made possible.

FESCO took on huge steel containers of freight in U. S., West Coast harbors, ran them to Vladivostok, put the containers piggyback on rail cars, hauled them across the Trans-Siberian railroad (now being double-tracked) and transferred them to other lines into Europe.

Sisco looked startled. But this should have been known. The Russians have shipped 50,000 such 20-ton containers, or about a million tons, in this fashion during this year's first three months. And at rates which would ruin our own merchant fleet.

Hall, with whom bluntness is an earthy science, told Sisco and company that detente was a hoax. And that several years ago he had spent considerable time and analysis convincing the longshoremen to end their boycott of Soviet shipping to get wheat and other grains moved abroad. The ILA had acceded. Some 40 U.S. ports had been opened to the Russians. And the Soviets had broken virtually every promise they made -- and so had the State Department.

Paul Hall, the Seafarers chief, told of Ecuador's seizing American tuna fishing craft manned by his followers -- because the ships had gone inside an arbitrarily set 200-mile limit. He reported that the shipowners had been forced to pay very heavy fines to recover their craft. Yet the Soviet fishing vessels were permitted to come right up to our 12-mile limit and take the bread from our own fishermen. Hall's philosophical and political arguments on detente's failure would burn this paper. And probably burn Sisco.

Sharply, Gleason told the State Department group that former Deputy Secretary of Defense William Clements had asked him, back in October 1973, not to boycott either the Russians or counterboycott the Arab oil lands, "for the good of the nation." Gleason had agreed. But no longer. There would be action if the Russians didn't end their betrayal of agreements.

"We're not going to stand for the Russians' getting away with murder and violations of international maritime rates," said Gleason. "If necessary we will take action against them just as we were prepared to counter the Arab oil embargo and Clements stopped us."

If the American maritime labor leaders decided to take counteraction and boycott the Russians, or embargo future Arab oil embargoers, they simply would refuse to handle any cargo to those nations. No loading or unloading at the piers. Picket them. Shut down specified docks.

Egypt and Syria, for example, would be hurt. They have long-term U. S. low interest credits (3 per cent annually) for scores of millions of dollars of American wheat and wheat flour. Why can't food be a weapon, Gleason argues. Isn't oil..

So Gleason told Sisco what he already has urged on his labor colleagues -- "let's take the oil embargo head on and give them a taste of their own medicine but not of our food."

The confrontation rbegan at three o'clock and broke up at 4 p.m. Dr. Kissinger was preparing for a press conference on South Vietnam.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Ford Revisionism

By JACK ANDERSON
Les Whitten

The sudden collapse of South Vietnam caught him with some bygone rhetoric stuck in his throat. He has been obliged to make some quick revisions, to wit:

-- The President had persistently sounded the warning that the United States would lose credibility with its other allies if more military aid weren't rushed to Saigon. The new line, according to our White House sources, is that U.S. credibility is still high and that our allies can depend upon U.S. commitments.

--The President had preached that a Communist victory in Vietnam would cause its Asian neighbors to fall like dominoes. Now he is spreading the word that he doesn't believe the domino theory after all.

-- Ford had implied that Congress was to blame for South Vietnam's military reverses for refusing to vote more aid. This line was eagerly adopted by Saigon leaders looking for a scapegoat for their own mishandling of the war. Now the President is trying to correct the impression that the United States was responsible for the fall of South Vientam.

-- Ford had called for an emergency appropriation of $700 million in military aid to save Saigon. At the same time, the Join Chiefs of Staff urged that billions worth of military equipment should be hauled out of South Vietnam before it fell into Communist hands. It would have made the President look silly, however, to remove weapons while he was pushing for more military aid.

Therefore, U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin blocked U.S. forces from salvaging an enormous arsenal, which the Communists have now inherited. The irony is tha t the Communists now possess far more U.S. equipment than they ever received from their own Russian and Chinese allies. This contradicts still another Ford implication that Hanoi got more military assistance than did Saigon.

RED FACES: Duane Freer, a Federal Aviation Administration bigwig, presented a flight safety award the other day to the DuBois, Pa., flight station. Then, ceremoniously, he led an FAA delegation to a waiting government plane, took the controls and taxied the plane into a ravine.

An investigation of the accident has now determined that the distinguished safety official was flying the plane illegally and that his fellow regulators had neglected to buckle their seat belts.

At an earlier airport luncheon, Freer extravagantly praised the DuBois station for guiding a pilot safely through an overcast on a near empty tank.

The luncheon crowd, speeches about air safety still echoing in theirears, gathered to see the important visitors off.

Grandly, the FAA bigshots boarded their official DC3 and, as the crowd waved boodbye, the plane wobbled down the runway like a drunken duck and plunged into a ravine.

The crowd rushed to the ruined plane and began to crowbar out the distinguished visitors. Some were seriously injured, including Freer.

The board has found that Freer, although rated to fly light aircraft, had no rating to fly a DC3. This is a violation both of FAA regulations and the law.

It also appears that he was only partially belted into his seat. Worse, some of the FAA regulators, who require all commercial passengers to fasten seat belts, didn't obey their own rules. This apparently caused many of the injuries.

Finally, the confidential findings indicate that the FAA hotshots were to blame for the crash.

Footnote: A board spokesman declined to comment except to say no final report is expected until summer. James E. Dow, the acting FAA administrator, promised "an evenhanded approach" to the case. He told us the FAA would treat "infractions by FAA employes in the same manner as we treat infractions by others."

COLSON'S MANUSCRIPT: Charles Colson the former White House tough guy who turned to Christianity, has completed 100,000 words of his book about Watergate.

He wrote much of the first draft by hand in prison. But now that he has been released, he dictates long passages to his wife, Patty.

Those who have seen his closely guarded manuscript say its message is that "a spiritual revival could well grow from Watergate."

Colson would tell us only that the book is about "what happens to a man when he accepts Christ in his life." His conversion, he says, helped him through the bleak prison months.

Colson hasn't yet selected a title for his book, although he has filled five pages of yellow pad paper with ideas for a name.

He refused to say how much his publisher, Chosen Books, is paying him for the manuscript. We have learned, however, that he turned down higher offers from larger publishers, because he preferred to deal with a small, religious-oriented firm.

Footnote: On two occasions, Colson has interrrupted his writing to testify in secret before the Rockefeller Commission, which is investigating the Central Intelligence Agency. Sources close to the commission say he reiterated views he had raised 18 months ago that the CIA was deeply implicated in domestic dirty tricks.

Final action near on budget

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Final action by the Missouri House in the state's $2.3 billion budget should be completed this week while the Senate plans to extend its working sessions to clear away a backlog of bills.

The House gave final approval to three budget measures last week, sending them to the Senate, and tentatively okayed four others. Work on the eighth budget bill funding legislative operations starting in July remains as well as final consideration of the other four.

A night session is scheduled today in the House to work on a number of measures correcting flaws in bills enacted in past sessions and to update other laws because of recent legislative changes.

Included in those proposals is a 272-page bill to bring the statutes into compliance with changes in the state's administrative structure as a result of reorganization.

One of the measures also repeals the bill passed last year that lowered the legal age from 21 to 18 for everything but buying and consuming alcoholic beverages. That law was declared unconstitutional by the state Supreme Court and a number of bills are pending this session to make that change in each individual law.

Consideration of no-fault insurance is high on the House schedule after debate on the budget pushed action on other measures back last week.

The Senate intends to extend its working sessions by about a day and a half for the next two weeks in an effort to reduce the 140 bills waiting to be considered.

Senate leaders indicate the expanded sessions will last two weeks and that the final month of the session will be devoted to considering bills already approved in the House. At the top of the House-approved list is the death penalty bill.

Increased state aid payments to junior colleges and the licensing of day care centers top the list of Senate bills awaiting consideration.

New drainage district petition is filed

CHARLESTON--Formation of a consolidated Circuit Court drainage district for 77,100 acres in the southern two-thirds of the Spillway in Mississippi County moved a step closer Tuesday, with the filing of a petition in Circuit Court.

The petition, signed by many landowners in the Spillway area, asks that the new district, to be called Consolidated Drainage District No. 1 of Mississippi County, be created from lands in all of County Court Drainage Districts 37, 29, 31, 38 and 36 and a portion of Districts 14 and 23.

The petition, signed by persons "constituting more than one'-fourth of the acreage" involved in the proposed new district, states they are willing to pay the taxes which may be assessed, pay the expenses of organizing the districts and to make and maintain improvents.

In a notice to be published this week opponents of the proposal, if any, are instructed to appear at the next term of court-beginning Oct. 6, 1975- to show cause why the district should not be organized.

The petition states that the acreage and benefits assessed by viewers and approved by the County Court for each of the old districts, is as follows:

| Dist. | Acres | Benefits |
|---|---|---|
| 37 | 507 | 18,618.00 |
| 29 | 40,715 | 683,797.56 |
| 31 | 7,335 | 85,267.69 |
| 38 | 1,066 | 15,099.70 |
| 36 | 1,512 | 78,822.50 |
| 14 | 13,380 | 114,259.14 |

Drug store broken into

ADVANCE — The Stoddard County Sheriff's Department is investigating a Friday night burglary at Nickens Drug Store.

Sheriff Ralph Mouser said thieves entered through the back door and took a large quantity of pills, 10 watches, a camera and a small amount of change from the cash register.

The burglary was the second at the drug store in recent weeks, Mouser said.

The larger brown seaweed or kelp that flourishes in the waters along the Pacific Coast grows one inch an hour or two feet a day, and eventually reaches lengths of 200 feet.

Army parachutist wants to fly

Pvt. E-2 Lewis

Pvt. E-2 Reita J. G. Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lewis, Route Three, recently graduated with honors in an airborne parachute training program at Fort Benning, Ga., WAC Station.

To graduate, Miss Lewis was required to parachute at an altitude of 1,200 feet six times with a perfect score each time. The two months' of training also included hiking, practice jumping and running several miles each day.

Miss Lewis is a 1974 graduate of Sikeston High School. She then received six weeks' basic training at Ft. McClellan, Ala., and was transferred to Aberdeen Proving Grounds in Maryland.

Currently, she is stationed at Ft. Bragg, N. C., and is in a leg group of the women's army airborne division.

Miss Lewis wants to be an army helicopter pilot. However, the Army does not offer pilot training to women. But, there are women helicopter pilots who have received qualifying training from a nonArmy sponsored program although there are no job openings for them in the Army once they receive their pilot training.

Supporters predict ERA to pass in 1977

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new national commission to observe 1975 as International Women's Year is planning to work for adoption of the Equal Rights Amendment but ERA supporters say 1977 is the earliest the amendment could be approved.

"The ERA is our No. 1 priority," said Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass., who with TV-film star Alan Alda heads the commission's study group on the ERA.

"International Women's Year is not going to be able to accomplish the ratification of the ERA itself but hopefully will help it," she said.

"I think we have to raise money for the ERA because a great deal of propaganda has been distributed at tremendous expense to spread around myths and it takes money to contradict them," she said.

In addition, she said in an interview, the commission intends to find ways to reach out to women not traditionally thought to be supporters of the feminist movement, to convince them the ERA will help them.

"I'm talking about factory workers as well as garden club ladies, teachers and legislators," she said.

The ERA would amend the Constitution to ban sex discrimination.

The Illinois House last week approved the ERA which now goes to the state Senate. However, most ERA supporters concede the amendment is in trouble, with ratification unlikely before 1977.

North Dakota this year became the 34th state to ratify the ERA. That total includes Tennessee and Nebraska, although legislatures in those two states later voted to rescind their ratifications.

The approval of four more states is needed prior to March 1979 before the amendment can be adopted.

Five state legislatures rejected it this spring.

If 38 states eventually ratify the amendment, Congress then would have to decide whether to count Tennessee and Nbraska as part of the total. Legislatures in both states first ratified the amendment but then subsequently voted to rescind that ratification.

Some constitutional specialists contend a state's duty expires upon ratification and that there is no provision for undoing that action.

Rep. Heckler and Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., said they saw no likelihood Congress would permit a recission.

Ann Landers

Hungry Herbie dislikes multicolored cauliflower

Dear Ann Landers: I married a wonderful gal, a psychology major who also happens to be a fantastic cook. Here's the problem.

Immediately after our honeymoon Sally began to prepare some very fancy dinners - exotic dishes I had never heard of before. When she served me mashed potatoes colored blue I told her to please get back to the simple stuff because food with strange coloring kills my appetite.

Sally insists I have a hangup and I must get rid of it. So now I'm getting pink milk, purple cottage cheese and polka-dot cauliflower, along with the blue potatoes.

Sally reads your column and your word is law in our house. Will you tell her artificially - colored food has nothing to do with emotional problems and to please stop trying to break me of a "hangup." This letter is not from Yale (I went to Brown eight years ago.) It's no gag, it's a for-real problem and I'd appreciate your help. -- Hungry Herbie

Dear Herbie: This is for Sally: Ix-nay on the ood-fay oloring-kay, kiddo. Herbie doesn't need to conquer the "hangup." It's a normal revulsion. In fact, the thought of polka-dot cauliflower nauseates me and I can eat anything.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 24-year-old girl with a terrible case of acne. I was asking some of the girls at work what to do about it. The salves and soaps I've been using don't do any good.

One girl asked me if I was a virgin. When I said, "Yes," she replied, "Your skin will clear up when you have sexual relations." I then discussed this with a couple other girls and they agreed with her.

What about it, Ann.. True or false.. -- Need To Know In Long Island.

Dear Need: Is that old yarn still kicking around.. Usually it's the boys who promote that garbage, but apparently some of the girls believe it, too. (Maybe someone sold THEM a bill of goods.)

There's no truth to it. If there were, all virgins would have skin problems and the promiscuous girls would have the most beautiful complexions. You know very well that such is not the case. Quit fooling around with salves and soaps and go to a dermatologist.Acne CAN be eliminated but you should be under the care and observation of a skin specialist.

Dear Ann Landers: Settle a family argument , please. My husband's brother was divorced from his wife. Is she still our sister-in-law.. If so, does this if he marries three more times we could end up with four sisters-in-law on account of this nut..

You wouldn't believe the flap this has caused in our family. Hurry your answer. -- Who's Who..

Dear Who. When your brother and his wife untied the knot legally, his wife became your FORMER sister-in-law. She was related only by marriage. When the marriage was terminated, she lost her "title."

No matter how often your brother marries he can give you only one set of in-laws at a time.

Dear Ann Landers: My girlfriend used to run her life according to the horoscope in the paper. She got into trouble a few times because she relied too much on the horoscope.Now she is debating between a mind-reader in Beverly Hills and a palmist in Boyle Heights. Which would you recommend.. -- Joe

Dear Joe: I have no faith in either, but if she MUST choose, she's betteroff with the palmist. It will probably cost her less and besides, I'm sure she has a palm.

Women tell truth in activity survey

CHICAGO (AP) — It seems women didn't like the survey that said women didn't like sex as much as men.

The survey, presented in a paper at the Midwestern Psychological Association convention by a human development specialist, drew gasps from some women and arguments from others.

Dr. Paul Cameron of St. Mary's College of Maryland said in his paper that men of all ages found more pleasure in sex and that before middle age they listed it as their most pleasurable activity.

Women surveyed never listed it as their most enjoyable activity and in some age groups even put it behind housework and sleeping.

A number of women argued that the survey didn't account for social pressures that would make women deny they enjoy sex.

"Women may think sex is No. 1 but when questioned they give a socially desirable response rather than a truthful one," was the way it was explained by Ann Frodi, 30, of Goteborg, Sweden, who is on a fellowship at the University of Wisconsin.

George Hurley, a 26-year-old graduate student, said men naturally would rate sex No. 1 because "there is peer pressure to be potent and talk about it."

Lenore De Fonso, 34, of the University of Wisconsin-Rock County near Janesville, Wis., had the same reaction.

"Women, perhaps, are more enthusiastic about other things but that doesn't mean they don't enjoy sex as much." she said. "Men are supposed to enjoy sex and they brag about it. Women don't make a big thing of it."

The 35-year-old Cameron, who presented the paper Thursday, said he was somewhat surprised at the survey's results and thought younger women in particular would rate sex enjoyment higher than they did.

"But," he added, "anyone who thinks the survey is not truthful is leaning on a weak reed."

Women tell truth in activity survey

CHICAGO (AP) — It seems women didn't like the survey that said women didn't like sex as much as men.

The survey, presented in a paper at the Midwestern Psychological Association convention by a human development specialist, drew gasps from some women and arguments from others.

Dr. Paul Cameron of St. Mary's College of Maryland said in his paper that men of all ages found more pleasure in sex and that before middle age they listed it as their most pleasurable activity.

Women surveyed never listed it as their most enjoyable activity and in some age groups even put it behind housework and sleeping.

A number of women argued that the survey didn't account for social pressures that would make women deny they enjoy sex.

"Women may think sex is No. 1 but when questioned they give a socially desirable response rather than a truthful one," was the way it was explained by Ann Frodi, 30, of Goteborg, Sweden, who is on a fellowship at the University of Wisconsin.

George Hurley, a 26-year-old graduate student, said men naturally would rate sex No. 1 because "there is peer pressure to be potent and talk about it."

Lenore De Fonso, 34, of the University of Wisconsin-Rock County near Janesville, Wis., had the same reaction.

"Women, perhaps, are more enthusiastic about other things but that doesn't mean they don't enjoy sex as much." she said. "Men are supposed to enjoy sex and they brag about it. Women don't make a big thing of it."

The 35-year-old Cameron, who presented the paper Thursday, said he was somewhat surprised at the survey's results and thought younger women in particular would rate sex enjoyment higher than they did.

"But," he added, "anyone who thinks the survey is not truthful is leaning on a weak reed."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Scribe's Lament

I have a song
That many have sung
And words for all to see,
Of souls who suffered
And fought for their rights
So their heavy hearts could beat free.
So stiffly they sat
Quietly thinking that
No man really wished them ill.
But their hearts grew cold;
They found they'd been told
Untruths--their voices to still.
As a child, I sat
At my mother's knee
And listened to the stories true.
She told of the past,
Predicted bold scribes,
And the work they had to do.
Much later, I sat
Quietly pondering that
My sad, moist eyes couldn't see.
It was then that I knew
What I had to do--
Oh, dear God! That scribe is ME!
Inside my brain
Throbbed a steady pain
And words--alive, but unspoken.
Then I tried to see
So the child at my knee
Would never view a pact broken.
And then I knelt
On bended knee
And prayed to be shown the ways.
But the night was still;
No sound on that hill.,
As I walked this earth in a daze.
While the night birds sang
And the forests rang
With a song of wildness I knew;
I prayed and I cried--
Then I tried and I tried,
'Til I DID what I had to do!
My children; they sit
At their mother's knee,
The blood in their veins runs true.
Since my sad words fly
Like birds in the sky,
They'll do what they have to do.

New postal rates likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — What effect is the Postal Service decision to merge air mail with first-class likely to have on future postage rate increases?

The Postal Service doesn't say in its request to the Postal Rate Commission for an opinion on the merger, but a new rate schedule expected this year is likely to eliminate a separate category for air mail and set 13 cents per ounce as the postage for domestic letters.

If, as the Postal Service plans, the merger takes place while present rates are in effect, there will no longer be any reason to pay the 13-cent air mail rate — a letter with a 10-cent stamp will be treated the same as one with a 13-cent stamp.

The Postal Service plans to go ahead with the merger Aug. 1, but even though the opinion of the Postal Rate Commission is not binding in this case, postal officials might delay the changeover if the commission has not made a decision by then.

The commission, a regulatory body responsible for monitoring major changes in postal operations, must invite the public to comment on the merger and ask the Postal Service questions about it. The length of the process is hard to predict.

Requirements involved in obtaining a postage rate increase are such that Oct. 1 is now seen as the earliest date hat the Postal Service might be able to raise its rates. The service is operating in the red, and its expenses will rise further when negotiations under way with four unions lead to new contracts for 600,000 postal workers.

Unless the Postal Service wants to go to fractional rates, 13 cents appears safe as the upper limit, for this year at least.

Within 100 days of the date that it files a rate increase petition with the Postal Rate Commission, the Postal Service could raise the first-class rate by no more than one-third of the present 10-cent figure, but it could not go higher until the commission made a final decision. The rate-changing process involves delays that would almost certainly preclude such a decision this year.

In disclosing its plans to merge air mail with first-class mail, the Postal Service stressed that most mail sent long distances now moves by air.

Troops to leave Thailand bases

By The Associated Press

The United States will remove more than one-quarter of its troops stationed in Thailand in the next two months, taking its first major step toward total withdrawal from its last military foothold in Southeast Asia, it was announced today.

The announcement, made jointly by the Thai and U.S. governments, said the authorized troop strength of 27,000 would be cut 28 per cent to 19,500. The announcement did not say how many of the 350 U.S. military planes remaining from the armada that bombed Cambodia and North and South Vietnam will be allowed to remain.

However, Thai Foreign Minister Chatichai Choonhavan said for the time being his country will hold on to 130 South Vietnamese Air Force planes that were flown there by refugees. They are claimed by both the new Saigon regime and the United States, which gave them to the former Saigion government.

He said there has been no contact so far between U.S. officials and the Thai government about the planes and the next step is to hold talks. Chatichai also said his government is ready to open diplomatic relations with North Vietnam.

Saigon radio, monitored in Bangkok, today carried the first word of release of persons imprisoned by the old South Vietnamese regime. It broadcast an invitation by the new regime for newly freed political prisoners and their families to meet at a pagoda and help plan a welcome home ceremony for people returning from Con Son prison island.

Communist broadcasts in the past have claimed the Nguyen Van Thieu government held tens of thousands of political prisoners, but the Thieu government claimed it held only criminals and Communists.

The East German Communist party newspaper Neues Deutschland reported from Saigon that thousands of officers and men of the former South Vietnamese navy turned over their ships and equipment Thursday and Friday.

Neues Deutschland also said the Saigon airfield at Tan Son Nhut was reopened Friday. It said the harbor at Da Nang was reopened April 24 and that foreign freighters could dock there after completing necessary forms provided by Revolutionary Government missions abroad.

The joint U. S. - Thai announcement on troop removal spoke of total withdrawal bv year's end.

Donald Ray Beggs of Sikeston and Richard Price of Poplar Bluff Reported the theft of citizens band radios from their trucks while parked at Charleston Auction Co. on West Marshall Street.

Beggs said his radio, valued at $375, was stolen sometime between 6:15 and 11:20 p.m. Saturday. Price's radio, valued at $226 , was stolen sometime between 8 and 11:20 p.m.

Troops to leave Thailand bases

By The Associated Press

The United States will remove more than one-quarter of its troops stationed in Thailand in the next two months, taking its first major step toward total withdrawal from its last military foothold in Southeast Asia, it was announced today.

The announcement, made jointly by the Thai and U.S. governments, said the authorized troop strength of 27,000 would be cut 28 per cent to 19,500. The announcement did not say how many of the 350 U.S. military planes remaining from the armada that bombed Cambodia and North and South Vietnam will be allowed to remain.

However, Thai Foreign Minister Chatichai Choonhavan said for the time being his country will hold on to 130 South Vietnamese Air Force planes that were flown there by refugees. They are claimed by both the new Saigon regime and the United States, which gave them to the former Saigion government.

He said there has been no contact so far between U.S. officials and the Thai government about the planes and the next step is to hold talks. Chatichai also said his government is ready to open diplomatic relations with North Vietnam.

Saigon radio, monitored in Bangkok, today carried the first word of release of persons imprisoned by the old South Vietnamese regime. It broadcast an invitation by the new regime for newly freed political prisoners and their families to meet at a pagoda and help plan a welcome home ceremony for people returning from Con Son prison island.

Communist broadcasts in the past have claimed the Nguyen Van Thieu government held tens of thousands of political prisoners, but the Thieu government claimed it held only criminals and Communists.

The East German Communist party newspaper Neues Deutschland reported from Saigon that thousands of officers and men of the former South Vietnamese navy turned over their ships and equipment Thursday and Friday.

Neues Deutschland also said the Saigon airfield at Tan Son Nhut was reopened Friday. It said the harbor at Da Nang was reopened April 24 and that foreign freighters could dock there after completing necessary forms provided by Revolutionary Government missions abroad.

The joint U. S. - Thai announcement on troop removal spoke of total withdrawal by year's end.

New postal rates likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — What effect is the Postal Service decision to merge air mail with first-class likely to have on future postage rate increases?

The Postal Service doesn't say in its request to the Postal Rate Commission for an opinion on the merger, but a new rate schedule expected this year is likely to eliminate a separate category for air mail and set 13 cents per ounce as the postage for domestic letters.

If, as the Postal Service plans, the merger takes place while present rates are in effect, there will no longer be any reason to pay the 13-cent air mail rate — a letter with a 10-cent stamp will be treated the same as one with a 13-cent stamp.

The Postal Service plans to go ahead with the merger Aug. 1, but even though the opinion of the Postal Rate Commission is not binding in this case, postal officials might delay the changeover if the commission has not made a decision by then.

The commission, a regulatory body responsible for monitoring major changes in postal operations, must invite the public to comment on the merger and ask the Postal Service questions about it. The length of the process is hard to predict.

Requirements involved in obtaining a postage rate increase are such that Oct. 1 is now seen as the earliest date hat the Postal Service might be able to raise its rates. The service is operating in the red, and its expenses will rise further when negotiations under way with four unions lead to new contracts for 600,000 postal workers.

Unless the Postal Service wants to go to fractional rates, 13 cents appears safe as the upper limit, for this year at least.

Within 100 days of the date that it files a rate increase petition with the Postal Rate Commission, the Postal Service could raise the first-class rate by no more than one-third of the present 10-cent figure, but it could not go higher until the commission made a final decision. The rate-changing process involves delays that would almost certainly preclude such a decision this year.

In disclosing its plans to merge air mail with first-class mail, the Postal Service stressed that most mail sent long distances now moves by air.

Tough turkey netting year

JEFFERSON CITY--Late spring snows may have been a pain in the driveway to Missourians in general, but two groups of people gave thanks for all the bad weather they could get.

Missouri forestrers watched gratefully as snow and rain dampened the potential for forest fires. And Missouri's wild turkey trapers saw snow cover influence turkeys to come to the trap sites.

It was a frustrating season for the Ozark turkey trappers who lure wild birds under cannon-propelled nets so the birds can be captured and restocked in suitable habitat elsewhere.

It was one of the toughest trapping seasons in 15 years for the bird men who finally totalled 121 birds caught and 112 used in several Department of CeConservation restoration projects.

Since trapping began on an annual basis in 1953 (there were 12 birds captured from 1945-47), Department turkey trappers have netted 2,583 birds and used 1,964 to stock 102 sites in 74 Missouri counties.

Once the birds are captured, they are quickly sent to their new home usually by airplane.

Of the 121 birds trapped, 32 came from National Forest areas, four from Johnson's Shut-Ins State Park and 85 from Department of Conservation areas.

Missouri sent 84 turkeys to Iowa as part of an ecexchange of 260 turkeys for 5,000 pheasants. Missouri already has stocked 1,000 of the Iowa pheasants in Harrison County hoping that the birds will increase Missouri pheasant range.

Another 15 turkeys went to Texas in exchange for 45 ruffed grouse (which rTexas itself had to trade for with northern grouse states). Missouri is trying to restore ruffed grouse, once native to the state, as it has deer and turkeys.

Of the 112 re-distributed birds, 82 were hens and 30 were gobblers.

Missouri has a number of sites which will receive birds in future initial or supplemental stockings and there are requests from several counties and from other states still to be decided on. The key is suitable turkey habitat, for if that is lacking it does not no good to stock birds in an area.

Fast pitch softball underway

Southeast Missouri's fast pitch softball league tipped off its season Friday night with all 10 teams getting into action at five sites throughout the Bootheel.

Sikeston Security National Bank used the three hit pitching performance of Bob Blair to defeat Scott City 5-0 while Vanduser blanked the Blues-3-0; Benton turned back Oran 7-4; New Hamburg Falstaffs raced past the Cape Girardeau Mets 8-3 and Cape Girardeau A's edged Kelso 3-2. League play resumes Wednesday.

Blair's performance was backed by an all out team effort, which pounded Scott City's A. J. Schott for a dozen hits. Blair led the assault with three hits. Bill Reid, John Heacox and David Pearson had two hits each. The Bank goes to New Hamburg Wednesday night.

In non'league action over the weekend, Vanduser split a doubleheader with Kennett Carnett, losing the opener 4-2 in eight innings and then defeating their opponents 6-5 in nine innings.

Gary Owens was almost a one man show in the twinbill, homering twice in the opening game and collecting three of the teams nine hits in the nightcap while driving in the winning run in the ninth.

Gene Tinnin gave up five hits and fanned three batters in the opening game to give Kennett the victory. Owens homered in the fourth and sixth, but a pair of runs in the top of the eighth gave the visitors the win.

Rick McDonald claimed the mound victory in the second game after relieving Owens, who had pitched in league play Friday night. Larry Broyles was the loser.

David Montgomery put Kennett ahead late in the second game with a two run homer to break a 3-3 deadlock, but some daring running after a wild pitch send Vanduser back into a tie was runners scored from second and third.

Vanduser plays Benton in league play Wednesday night.

River report

They've put the Missouri River in a strait jacket and the result has been the loss of thousands of acres of fish and wildlife habitat.

That's the gist of a newly-published study on the Missouri by John Funk, recently retired chief of Fisheries Research for the Department of Conseevation, and John Robinson, biologist with the Department.

"Radical changes have been impressed upon the surging brown Missouri River in the years since Lewis and Clark threaded their boats up a sprawling river studded with islands and sunken timber," say the biologists.

"If the explorers of 1804 could return, they would be bewildered in trying to locate any of their river camp sites or landmarks."

The examples of habitat loss along the river are horrifying to a hunter or fisherman. In distance alone from the mouth of the Missouri to Rulo, Nebraska, the river has lost 45.6 miles in the past 93 years or more than eight per cent of its former length.

"The rate of loss has apparently accelerated," the biologists say. "Between 1954 and 1972, 16.4 miles were lost. The average rate has been one-half mile a year."

In 1954, an average mile of river had 138 acres of water, so more than 4,000 acres have been lost in 75 years by river shortening--an area equal to more than half of Pommee de Terre Reservoir.

The two measured the loss of water area at 50,588 acres between 1879 and 1954, because of structures to make the river flow in a narrower channel, with a faster current.

An additional 10,244 acres of water were ost since 1954--or a total of 60,832 acres which is 50 per cent of the original surface area of the Missouri and as much surface water as there is in Lake of the Ozarks.

Islands vanished--dikes closed the chutes between the island thand shore and the chutes filled in. Some 98 per cent of the islands acreage is gone.

Generally, the islands, which had been fine wooded wildlife habitat, have been cleared. The chutes were nursery and resting areas for aquatic species and were fishing areas. They are gone.

The islands originally were in public domain, but the filled-in land has been annexed by admoining landowners. The loss of public land is nearly 67,000 acres.

"The loss of the islands is a loss to recreational opportunity in both fisheries and wildlife and a loss to the diversity of the river enviornment," say Funk and Robinson.

Robinson has been working on the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers for 10 years, much of it working with commercial fishermen who have ween many changes as the river has changed. Paddlefish, sturgeon and blue catfish, once common, lall have declined, while carp and channel catfish have increased.

"The circumstantial evidence of a direct relationship be decreased habitat diversity and decreased fish population diversity is very strong," says Robinson.

Wildlife has suffered heavily as the river and associated wetlands has shrunk. Pioneer records show an abundance of wildlife, much of which rapidly vanished or declined as Missouri was settled.

Species dependent on backwaters and sloughs, such as beaver, muskrat and raccoon, are gone from the steep, sandy shores of the present-day Missouri.

Just before the turn of the century, a book, "Where to Hunt American Game," mentioned the superb waterfowl hunting on the Missouri.

Although there still is good waterfowl hunting on occasion, it's shadow of what it was was.

"The 60,832 water surface acres lost," Funk says, "is more than five times the water water area of Swan Lake National Wildlife Refuge, Fountain Grove Wildlife Area, Squaw Creek National Wildlife Refuge, the August A. Busch Memorial Wildlife Area and Trimble Wildlife Area all of which are on or near the Missouri River.

"The river is essential to waterfowl, but the habitat it provides now is far from satisfactory."

The report summarizes a river almost destroyed as fish and wildlife habitat. Islands, chutes and sloughs are gone, snags removed. "The fishery, a bountiful resource taken for granted and thoughtlessly exploited has declined," the biologists say. Wildlife likewise has declined.

Funk, who spent 29 years studying Missouri's rivers and has earned numerous honors, says about the Missouri, "The Missouri River is an example of what can happen to a great natural resource when the basis for management is narrow and explorative. A select few benefitted greatly at the expense of the broad public good."

Devils edge EPHS

The Chaffee Red Devils defeated the East Prairie Eagles Friday afternoon 1-0. The winning pitcher was McGuire who fanned four and did not walk a single batter. Wheatley fanned a total of three men and walked only one. The pitching which proved to be very good was not followed by some fantastic show of scoring as only one run was made in the eight innings of play. The one run came when Duncan hit a rgrounder and due to an error arrived safe on second base. Spencer then smashed a double to bring Duncan home for the only scored run.

In the hitting department, East Prairie proved to be the better one with a toal of four hits and Chaffee had three. The leading smashers for Chaffee were Spencer, Stubbs, and Duncan. Outstanding hit knockers for East Prairie were Thurman, Moore, Bays, and Wheatley.

Tough turkey netting year

JEFFERSON CITY--Late spring snows may have been a pain in the driveway to Missourians in general, but two groups of people gave thanks for all the bad weather they could get.

Missouri forestrers watched gratefully as snow and rain dampened the potential for forest fires. And Missouri's wild turkey trapers saw snow cover influence turkeys to come to the trap sites.

It was a frustrating season for the Ozark turkey trappers who lure wild birds under cannon-propelled nets so the birds can be captured and restocked in suitable habitat elsewhere.

It was one of the toughest trapping seasons in 15 years for the bird men who finally totalled 121 birds caught and 112 used in several Department of CeConservation restoration projects.

Since trapping began on an annual basis in 1953 (there were 12 birds captured from 1945-47), Department turkey trappers have netted 2,583 birds and used 1,964 to stock 102 sites in 74 Missouri counties.

Once the birds are captured, they are quickly sent to their new home usually by airplane.

Of the 121 birds trapped, 32 came from National Forest areas, four from Johnson's Shut-Ins State Park and 85 from Department of Conservation areas.

Missouri sent 84 turkeys to Iowa as part of an ecexchange of 260 turkeys for 5,000 pheasants. Missouri already has stocked 1,000 of the Iowa pheasants in Harrison County hoping that the birds will increase Missouri pheasant range.

Another 15 turkeys went to Texas in exchange for 45 ruffed grouse (which rTexas itself had to trade for with northern grouse states). Missouri is trying to restore ruffed grouse, once native to the state, as it has deer and turkeys.

Of the 112 re-distributed birds, 82 were hens and 30 were gobblers.

Missouri has a number of sites which will receive birds in future initial or supplemental stockings and there are requests from several counties and from other states still to be decided on. The key is suitable turkey habitat, for if that is lacking it does not no good to stock birds in an area.

Fast pitch softball underway

Southeast Missouri's fast pitch softball league tipped off its season Friday night with all 10 teams getting into action at five sites throughout the Bootheel.

Sikeston Security National Bank used the three hit pitching performance of Bob Blair to defeat Scott City 5-0 while Vanduser blanked the Blues-3-0; Benton turned back Oran 7-4; New Hamburg Falstaffs raced past the Cape Girardeau Mets 8-3 and Cape Girardeau A's edged Kelso 3-2. League play resumes Wednesday.

Blair's performance was backed by an all out team effort, which pounded Scott City's A. J. Schott for a dozen hits. Blair led the assault with three hits. Bill Reid, John Heacox and David Pearson had two hits each. The Bank goes to New Hamburg Wednesday night.

In non'league action over the weekend, Vanduser split a doubleheader with Kennett Carnett, losing the opener 4-2 in eight innings and then defeating their opponents 6-5 in nine innings.

Gary Owens was almost a one man show in the twinbill, homering twice in the opening game and collecting three of the teams nine hits in the nightcap while driving in the winning run in the ninth.

Gene Tinnin gave up five hits and fanned three batters in the opening game to give Kennett the victory. Owens homered in the fourth and sixth, but a pair of runs in the top of the eighth gave the visitors the win.

Rick McDonald claimed the mound victory in the second game after relieving Owens, who had pitched in league play Friday night. Larry Broyles was the loser.

David Montgomery put Kennett ahead late in the second game with a two run homer to break a 3-3 deadlock, but some daring running after a wild pitch send Vanduser back into a tie was runners scored from second and third.

Vanduser plays Benton in league play Wednesday night.

River report

They've put the Missouri River in a strait jacket and the result has been the loss of thousands of acres of fish and wildlife habitat.

That's the gist of a newly-published study on the Missouri by John Funk, recently retired chief of Fisheries Research for the Department of Conseevation, and John Robinson, biologist with the Department.

"Radical changes have been impressed upon the surging brown Missouri River in the years since Lewis and Clark threaded their boats up a sprawling river studded with islands and sunken timber," say the biologists.

"If the explorers of 1804 could return, they would be bewildered in trying to locate any of their river camp sites or landmarks."

The examples of habitat loss along the river are horrifying to a hunter or fisherman. In distance alone from the mouth of the Missouri to Rulo, Nebraska, the river has lost 45.6 miles in the past 93 years or more than eight per cent of its former length.

"The rate of loss has apparently accelerated," the biologists say. "Between 1954 and 1972, 16.4 miles were lost. The average rate has been one-half mile a year."

In 1954, an average mile of river had 138 acres of water, so more than 4,000 acres have been lost in 75 years by river shortening--an area equal to more than half of Pommee de Terre Reservoir.

The two measured the loss of water area at 50,588 acres between 1879 and 1954, because of structures to make the river flow in a narrower channel, with a faster current.

An additional 10,244 acres of water were ost since 1954--or a total of 60,832 acres which is 50 per cent of the original surface area of the Missouri and as much surface water as there is in Lake of the Ozarks.

Islands vanished--dikes closed the chutes between the island thand shore and the chutes filled in. Some 98 per cent of the islands acreage is gone.

Generally, the islands, which had been fine wooded wildlife habitat, have been cleared. The chutes were nursery and resting areas for aquatic species and were fishing areas. They are gone.

The islands originally were in public domain, but the filled-in land has been annexed by admoining landowners. The loss of public land is nearly 67,000 acres.

"The loss of the islands is a loss to recreational opportunity in both fisheries and wildlife and a loss to the diversity of the river enviornment," say Funk and Robinson.

Robinson has been working on the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers for 10 years, much of it working with commercial fishermen who have ween many changes as the river has changed. Paddlefish, sturgeon and blue catfish, once common, lall have declined, while carp and channel catfish have increased.

"The circumstantial evidence of a direct relationship be decreased habitat diversity and decreased fish population diversity is very strong," says Robinson.

Wildlife has suffered heavily as the river and associated wetlands has shrunk. Pioneer records show an abundance of wildlife, much of which rapidly vanished or declined as Missouri was settled.

Species dependent on backwaters and sloughs, such as beaver, muskrat and raccoon, are gone from the steep, sandy shores of the present-day Missouri.

Just before the turn of the century, a book, "Where to Hunt American Game," mentioned the superb waterfowl hunting on the Missouri.

Although there still is good waterfowl hunting on occasion, it's shadow of what it was was.

"The 60,832 water surface acres lost," Funk says, "is more than five times the water water area of Swan Lake National Wildlife Refuge, Fountain Grove Wildlife Area, Squaw Creek National Wildlife Refuge, the August A. Busch Memorial Wildlife Area and Trimble Wildlife Area all of which are on or near the Missouri River.

"The river is essential to waterfowl, but the habitat it provides now is far from satisfactory."

The report summarizes a river almost destroyed as fish and wildlife habitat. Islands, chutes and sloughs are gone, snags removed. "The fishery, a bountiful resource taken for granted and thoughtlessly exploited has declined," the biologists say. Wildlife likewise has declined.

Funk, who spent 29 years studying Missouri's rivers and has earned numerous honors, says about the Missouri, "The Missouri River is an example of what can happen to a great natural resource when the basis for management is narrow and explorative. A select few benefitted greatly at the expense of the broad public good."

Devils edge EPHS

The Chaffee Red Devils defeated the East Prairie Eagles Friday afternoon 1-0. The winning pitcher was McGuire who fanned four and did not walk a single batter. Wheatley fanned a total of three men and walked only one. The pitching which proved to be very good was not followed by some fantastic show of scoring as only one run was made in the eight innings of play. The one run came when Duncan hit a rgrounder and due to an error arrived safe on second base. Spencer then smashed a double to bring Duncan home for the only scored run.

In the hitting department, East Prairie proved to be the better one with a toal of four hits and Chaffee had three. The leading smashers for Chaffee were Spencer, Stubbs, and Duncan. Outstanding hit knockers for East Prairie were Thurman, Moore, Bays, and Wheatley.

Meramec CC bids for repeat title

Crowder JC of Neosho, Mo., commanded a 9-6 lead entering the bottom of the ninth inning and was only three outs from ousting the defending titlists.

But Meramec struck for four runs in quick succession to take a stunning 10-9 triumph and the Region 16 title. The Warriors, second-ranked in current NJCAC standings, advance to the Central district tourney beginning Thursday at Lamar, Colo.

Sunday's game was the deciding contest in the best of three series after the teams split a doubleheader Saturday. Meramec won the opener, 2-0, but Crowder came back in the nightcap, 15-3.

It appeared Crowder would retain its second-game impetus until the final inning Sunday.

Chris Berra started the rally with a double that scored two runs. Then Doug Vaughn followed with a bloop hit down the rightfield line that scored the tieing run.

When a Crowder fielder attempted to pick off Vaughn as he tried to stretch his hit into a double, the throw to second was wild and Vaughn scampered home with the winning run.

Watson scores history

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

Minnesota's Rod Carew and New York's Chris Chambliss were 90 feet away from glory Sunday, but they came up a couple of feet short.

Carew and Chambliss were both tossed out at home moments before Houston's Bob Watson scored major league baseball's one millionth run Sunday. Watson collected $1,000 and a gold watch for his feat. Carew could take consolation in the Twins' 6-3 victory over Kansas City. Chambliss and the Yankees got nothing but an 11-4 pasting from Milwaukee.

"I knew it would have been the one millionth run because the word was relayed from the dugout," said Carew, who was thrown out at the plate by right fielder Al Cowens on a short fly ball in the second inning.

"I don't think it really would have meant that much."

Chambliss missed his chance in the fourth when Milwaukee first baseman George Scott caught him trying to score on a grounder.

"I did that to Chambliss? I didn't know that," said Scott. "Poor Chambliss. That's all I can say, man — poor Chambliss. If I knew that maybe I wouldn't have thrown him out ... yes, I would have, too."

Elsewhere in the American League, Texas edged California 1-0; Baltimore and Cleveland split a doubleheader, the Orioles winning he operner 11-1 and the Indians taking the nightcap 4-3 in 11 innings; Chicago beat Oakland 5-2, and a Detroit-Boton doubleheader was rained out.

Minnesota got seven scoreless innings of relief pitching from Jim Hughes to hand the Royals their 10th loss in the lat 13 games. Hughes surrendered just four hits to earn his first major league victory.

Smith stands out in loss

ST. LOUIS (AP)—"We're just trying to be recognized," asserted Jim Marshall, the manager of baseball's surprising Chicago Cubs.

And a member of the St. Louis Cardinals, whom the Cubs roughed up again Sunday, says he's willing to concede the point to Marshall's aggressive young team.

"A guy just asked me if the Cubs are real," mused Reggie Smith, whose five hits—including two solo homers—were wasted in an 8-6 Cardinals defeat.

"Well, right now they are," Smith declared. "They get a hit, they score a run and they win. They're playing with a lot of confidence."

The confidence of the Cubs, who have a 15-6 record, could not have suffered following the seventh inning of Sunday's game.

Down 4-2, they arose with the aid of three straight walks from Lynn McGlothen, 2-2, following Pete LaCock's leadoff single.

Jose Cardenal then drove a sacrifice fly to tie for Chicago, and Bill Madlock and Jerry Morales hit singles off reliever Mike Garman to score three more runs and cap a five-run rally.

"I think the biggest hit of the day was Morales'," remarked Marshall, whose club withstood the Smith homers and four Card doubles.

"But there were a lot of good things," Marshall added. "I like to credit my two left-handed pinch-hitters (John Summers and Adrian Garrett) for coming in and drawing the walks.

"Most of our batters are the type of hitters that can get the bat on the ball," observed Marshall, whose club widened its lead in the National League East to four games.

"We don't have too many long ball hitters," he noted, "so we just have to keep pecking away. I'll tell you, this was a heckuva win for us."

Chicago's winning pitcher was 5-foot-10 Oscar Zamora, 2-0, who rescued starter Geoff Zahn during a two-run Cards fourth inning and worked three innings.

Darold Knowles, appearing in his ninth game, finished to record his fifth save, leading Marshall to express the belief that "as far as I'm concerned we have to credit the relief pitching again."

Smith's homers were from the right and left side of the plate, marking the fourth time in the majors the switch-hitting outfielder has accomplished the feat.

"I'm disappointed by the final score, but anytime you go 5-for-5 and have 5 RBI you can't help but feel good," Smith said softly. "We get six runs, and we should win."

Rams win 9th

Illmo-Scott City continued to role toward their third straight district baseball championship after eliminating Meadow Heights from the playoffs 10-4 Thursday afternoon.

Rick Sample, recording his fifth victory of the season against no defeats, scattered eight hits to his opponents while fanning 10 and walking two as the Rams recorded their ninth win in 11 games this season.

The Rams continue their bid for the class A district 10 title Monday at Chaffee when they meet the winner of the Woodland-Advance game.

Terry Blattell provided the big hit for the Rams Thursday, connecting for a first inning solo homer and Steve Hanschen posted a three for three mark at the plate, driving in four runs and connecting for a double. He is batting .560 on the season.

I'SC placed second in the state two years ago and claimed the district last year before losing to Kansas City Pem-Day in the first round of the state last year at Poplar Bluff.

Oran upset fourth seeded Bloomfield in class A district baseball play Thursday afternoon, scoring five runs in the sixth inning to overcome a 5-3 deficit and post a 8-5 victory.

Bill Senciboy claimed the victory, allowing 10 hits while fanning three and walking two. Keith Jackson was nanded the defeat in releif.

Oran capitalized on 15 bases on balls issued by the Wildcats mound corps. Brent Prindle was the Eagles leading hitter on the day, collecting two of the teams six hits and driving home three runs.

The Eagles are 4-6 on the season and play Lilbourn in district action at Bernie Monday afternoon at 4 p.m.

Meramec CC bids for repeat title

Crowder JC of Neosho, Mo., commanded a 9-6 lead entering the bottom of the ninth inning and was only three outs from ousting the defending titlists.

But Meramec struck for four runs in quick succession to take a stunning 10-9 triumph and the Region 16 title. The Warriors, second-ranked in current NJCAC standings, advance to the Central district tourney beginning Thursday at Lamar, Colo.

Sunday's game was the deciding contest in the best of three series after the teams split a doubleheader Saturday. Meramec won the opener, 2-0, but Crowder came back in the nightcap, 15-3.

It appeared Crowder would retain its second-game impetus until the final inning Sunday.

Chris Berra started the rally with a double that scored two runs. Then Doug Vaughn followed with a bloop hit down the rightfield line that scored the tieing run.

When a Crowder fielder attempted to pick off Vaughn as he tried to stretch his hit into a double, the throw to second was wild and Vaughn scampered home with the winning run.

Watson scores history

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

Minnesota's Rod Carew and New York's Chris Chambliss were 90 feet away from glory Sunday, but they came up a couple of feet short.

Carew and Chambliss were both tossed out at home moments before Houston's Bob Watson scored major league baseball's one millionth run Sunday. Watson collected $1,000 and a gold watch for his feat. Carew could take consolation in the Twins' 6-3 victory over Kansas City. Chambliss and the Yankees got nothing but an 11-4 pasting from Milwaukee.

"I knew it would have been the one millionth run because the word was relayed from the dugout," said Carew, who was thrown out at the plate by right fielder Al Cowens on a short fly ball in the second inning.

"I don't think it really would have meant that much."

Chambliss missed his chance in the fourth when Milwaukee first baseman George Scott caught him trying to score on a grounder.

"I did that to Chambliss? I didn't know that," said Scott. "Poor Chambliss. That's all I can say, man — poor Chambliss. If I knew that maybe I wouldn't have thrown him out ... yes, I would have, too."

Elsewhere in the American League, Texas edged California 1-0; Baltimore and Cleveland split a doubleheader, the Orioles winning he operner 11-1 and the Indians taking the nightcap 4-3 in 11 innings; Chicago beat Oakland 5-2, and a Detroit-Boton doubleheader was rained out.

Minnesota got seven scoreless innings of relief pitching from Jim Hughes to hand the Royals their 10th loss in the lat 13 games. Hughes surrendered just four hits to earn his first major league victory.
